The crossword puzzle grid consists of blue-outlined squares. The word "chicken" is written in red lowercase letters across a horizontal row of seven squares. Above this row, a white cat is positioned above the first square, a brown chicken above the second square, and a duck above the fourth square. Below the row, a dog is positioned below the second square, and a goat is positioned below the sixth square. Red arrows point from the illustrations to the corresponding squares in the grid. The grid has several other empty squares for words to be written.
