Holidays in Italy

Many people spend their summer holidays in one of the many cities in Italy. Each city has something else different thing to offer. During the 15th century, Venice became one of the more richest states in Europe. It continues to grow up today. Some say that Venice never changes. It looks just as if beautiful the first, second or third time you visit. There are more than 150 canals are crossed by 400 bridges. So, as much of the city can be seen on foot. Others prefer to the small town of Lecce in the south of the country. Famed for its olive oil and fish restaurants, Lecce attracts a lots of Italian visitors. It is busy in August when people gather for the flower festival. Its fine churches are usually decorated the all year round. The mountain country to the north of Milan provides for skiing in the winter and walking in the summer. It appears that Italy has something for everyone; each one region offers something different.
