I'll be sixteen next month. I'd like to have a party at home and invite all my school friends, but I don't want my parents to be at home then. Last night, I asked them about the party. They said I could have a party but they would stay at home.

I'm really unhappy now. The party will be a disaster if my parents are in the house. We won't do anything wrong at the party, but we won't be able to relax and enjoy ourselves if they are at home. How can I make my parents understand?

Helen

I've got a problem at school and I don't know what to do about it. I'm good at Math and always get high marks for my homework. Two of the other boys in my class wait for me before school starts and take my homework book. Then they copy the Math homework. The worst thing is that they write and draw in my homework book and the teacher gets angry with me because my book is dirty and untidy. I don't want to tell my parents because it'll be worse for me if they complain to the head teacher. What can I do?

Andrew

My parents are very nice but they are quite old-fashioned. I'm 13. I want to choose my own clothes but my mother always goes shopping with me. She never lets me buy what I want. My friends at school make fun of me because I don't wear any cool clothes. They don't ask me to go out with them at the weekends and they never invite me to parties. I've tried to talk to my parents about this but they don't understand. What can I do?
